What is home?
Is it a noun – a person, place, or thing?
Or is it ambiguous?
When you have existed in thousands of places
And twelve of them were all considered 'home'
The definition becomes a little construed.
It becomes materialistic
And, occasionally,
Nonexistent.
Because when you find yourself aching
And desperately needing an end to a dreary day,
You expect a haven –
Somewhere you should be safe
And that is
Nonexistent.
